8, 1903 Brother Tomlinson was released as Sunday School Superintendent and George A. Wootten filled this vacancy with Henry J. Clegg and William T. Hicken as his counselors.

The next auxiliary to be organized was the Young Men's Mutual Association. This occurred May 28, 1903 when Andrew G. Erickson was made President with Charles J. Wahlquist, First Counselor, and Alma E. Dayton, Second Counselor. However, the regular weekly meeting did not commence until October 13, 1903. On October 19, 1903 John M. Chapman was set apart as Second Counselor and Jay E. Jensen was made Assistant Secretary. On October 27th,
